FOR three days the colony has been disbut the festivities of the last three days, if the water illuminations be taken into consideration, transcend anything the colony has previously experienced in the way of a purely Chinese celebration. The land processions were equalled or perhaps surpassed on the occasions of the Jubiles celebrations and the visitof the Princes, but the water illuminations were an entirely novel feature the effectiveness of which was undeniable: The procession of boats was a failure from a spectacular point of view, as the moving line was obscured by the cargo boats marking the route, but before the procession commenced, when the boats were all congregated in the neighbourhood of Murray Pier, each one illuminated with strings of lanterns, the scene was as beautiful an ideal fairy picture. The Chinese are to be congratulated on the success which has attended the celebration and on the prosperity of which it may be taken as a token, for no such demonstration would have been attempted in hard times. The last year was a very prosperous one for the natives, and the European community would be churlish if it refused to rejoice with them in their success, although the Europeans themselves have not been smiled upon by fortune to the same extent.

But there are one or two points in connection with the celebration that merit some hardly seemly that the Government there still seems no prospect of any very early in a letter to bis commanding officer, bus of these, representing the Military and Civil consideration. In the first place, it is should directly participate in a purely idelatrous celebration. Let there be the fullest toleration by all means, let every reasonable facility be afforded to our native friends to propitate their gods in their own way, but that the Government should directly lend its co-operation and so countenance superstition is calculated to give rise to fulse impressions. In the celebration just concluded prominent members of the Civil situation is altogether discouraging, for al-Service lent their official aid in making the arrangements and carrying them out, metal has greatly increased during the last and the procession of boats was headed by few years, as may be seen by reference to the Government floating fire on gige, with any table of index numbers, yet it takes its name prominently set out in a very assistance to the affair was given simply with ly, and the prospect of going home with an effective device of lanterns. The commercial pro- tinue at their post, while amongst these of the gress of India under free coinage was remarkable, and in comparison with the increasing wealth of the country the difficulty thirty odd officials from the provinces consist of experienced by the Government in arranging its sterling obligations with a declining exchange was insignificant. To get over that difficulty, however, an artificial value has been given to the rupes, to the ruination of trade, and now additional taxation is to be imposed, for an import duty of five per cent, is to be levied not only on silver, as Reuter's telegram would make it appear, but on trade ingeneral with the exception of cotton goods and yarn. To the people in India it will probably be found a little difficult to justify this exception, which has been made for the benefit of Manchester rather than of India, for if a general import duty is to be imposed it is not easy to see on what equitable ground's cotton goods should be exempted rather than hardware

> The experience of India ought to a warning to all colonies and states not to borrow in any currency other than that of the country. On a smaller scale we in Hongkong are affected in the same way. All the money required for the prosecution of public works could have been raised locally and in silver without difficulty, but the home Government insisted upon the loans being contracted in gold, with the result that the colony has to repay about twentyas five per cent, more than it borrowed. The policy pursued has been almost as ruinous as that of a spendthrift undergraduate who falls into the hands of usurers, the usurer the result that the bows of one of the houseboats in this case being represented by the home capitalist, who although he has not insisted on an extortionate rate of interest has been able to attain the same end by cornering gold Rocky Point, was readily granted and towards and so increasing its value and rendering it evening some fourteen men from the gunboat roprehensible. While he was in America Charles Mitchell repeatedly talked of meeting "John L. again, but talking was all be did. Sallivan several times offered Mitchell £1,000 to meet him for six rounds in private, but-Mitchell determined to keep such laurels as he had gained. It is evident that Sullivan thought comething of Madden's find, or he would not have proffered anoli terms. THE SECOND MEETING OF SULLIVAN AND MITCHELL. From May 14, 1883, until March 10, 1888,

Charles Mitchell contrived to keep himself in the front rank of pugilists without doing anything but sparring with James Smith, Kilrain, and other boxers of more or less reputa. In 1888 Mitchell succeeded in obtaining a magnificent advertisement by maeting Sullivan in the prize ring. After abusing each other in columns of choice letterpress, and arglebargling for months. the two signed articles to meet for $500 aside, under London prize ring rules, in a 24 foot cing The meeting took place on a cold and blustering Saturday on Baron Bothschild's grounds at Chantilly in Flance, and resulted as every boy knows in a drag . Sulliv in was not well versed in the rules of the London Prize Ripg, while Mitchell was quite au fait with the regulations and took every advantage that he could Of course, I am not so foolish as to say that he was not justified in ding so. I never read of moch a ludierous fight as this. Ladeed it can hardly be called a fight, for Litchell was generalw running round the ring in he hope of wearing his bigger opponent out. Sulivan said that Mitchell wore a track like a shap run round th ring, and asserted that if they had been in a 16 feet ring, and if he had not hart his right arm, he would have whipped Mitchell. There is much virtue in if, as Shakepere says. Well, in my opinion the performants was no credit to either of the men, and the ony fact that Mitchell demonstrated was that be was not afraid to enter a ring presumably for the object of a knuckle fight with Sullival. Instead of being A fight, it was a go aswou-pleas; race, and Mitchell proved himself in able long distance purilist. Since this event Mitchell has had more sparring with James Mace, Frank Slavin, 157.00 and others, but I cannot say that he has done anything but maintain an easily made reputation. Now compare the career of Mitchell with that of Tom Sayers James Macs, or any other old time champions of England, and see how he stands. Mitchell, as I have already intimated, is a clever boxer, is courseous, and has excellent abilities as a showman, but I cannot see that his record entitles him to fight for the World's Championship, on the partie a really sei utific
